Identifies E. German defector

May 11 (R) — An East German diplomat who has been working for the West German foreign intelligence agency (BND) has been identified today as Peter Schaefflich, former head of the Scandinavian section in the East German ministry. He is the second high-ranking East German official to defect to the West. In January, Werner Schaefflich, head of the East German ministry of state security, defected to the West. He is now working for the BND. The newspaper Bild Zeitung reported that Mr. Schaefflich had worked for the past three years in the West German foreign intelligence agency (BND).

Five killed in clashes in India

NEW DELHI, May 11 (R) — Five people were killed in clashes between police and students at Aligarh, southeast of Delhi, the Press Trust of India (PTI) reported today. Several police and students were also injured in the clashes last night when police and members of the paramilitary Provincial Armed Constabulary (PAC) opened fire on a crowd of students. Students had set fire to several shops in the town, scene of riots between Hindus and Muslims last November in which 26 people were killed, the news agency said. Muslim students are protesting against new legislation which they say deprives the 59-year-old university in Aligarh of its Muslim character and autonomy. Today, local authorities clamped a curfew on the town, 130 kilometres from Delhi, and ordered the university, which has a sizeable proportion of non-Muslim students, to close down all colleges and hostels.

Cairo defines position for autonomy talks Arabs protest Jewish settlement, self-rule plans, Egypt-Israel pact

D JERUSALEM, May 11 (R) — Arab school children and Jewish settlers in several towns in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip today in protest against Jewish settlements, Israel's self-rule plans for the occupied territories and the separate Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty.

Protests were held during earlier days in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip. The official Middle East News Agency (MENA) said the committee, under Premier Mustapha Khalil, had reviewed principles that Egypt would maintain in the forthcoming negotiations with Israel and the United States. MENA said these principles were: —Self-rule should be given to all Palestinian territories occupied by Israel in 1967, which are the West Bank, including Jerusalem, and the Gaza Strip. —Palestinian authority should be established by free and direct elections on the West Bank and in the Gaza Strip. —The Israeli military should be withdrawn from the occupied West Bank. The Israeli military authorities, who had set up roadblocks to prevent the demonstration, finally allowed the planting of olive saplings on a hillside near Hebron in the occupied West Bank. S.African students jailed for 1976 Soweto riots

JOHANNESBURG, May 11 (R) — Four students from Soweto, accused of leading the 1976 riots, were sentenced today to prison for between two and four years. But the judge gave seven other students suspended sentences of five years each. Blacks waiting for the end of the seven-month trial at a courthouse in Johannesburg's white suburb of Kemptown Park said the sentences were lighter than they expected. Judge Henk Van Dyk last week found the 11 defendants — members of the now-outlawed Soweto Students' Representative Council (SSRC) — guilty of sedition for organising demonstrations which led to the violent clashes with police.

Iranian blood bath in Iran Autonomy is not granted them

(R) — A Kurdish leader warned Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's revolutionary government today that refusal to grant autonomy to the Kurdish-populated province of Northern Iran to a blood bath. The population is well armed and determined to fight for Kordistan, representative of the Iranian Kurdish Party (IKDP) in France. He today could easily develop into a fully-fledged civil war in Iran, he said. The French-sponsored Paris-based International Human Rights, Mr. Nezan said that more than 500 Kurds and several hundred injured in Kurdish cities last year and guerrillas of the 'Khomeini coming terror in Kurdish territory. Unless Ayatollah Khomeini grants autonomy to Iranian Kurdistan, there will be a blood bath. The Kurdish leader said that he had been on a tour of Kurdish-dominated territory in Iraq. He said that the IKDP Secretary-General Abdul Rahman Ghassemlou had appealed to Ayatollah Khomeini to meet him in local autonomy, but there had been no reply. He said that in an interview on French television earlier this year he had called a highly explosive situation in Kurdistan. Kuwait to withdraw deposits from Egypt

WASHINGTON, May 11 (R) — Kuwait has told Egypt it wants to withdraw one billion dollars of Kuwaiti deposits in Egyptian banks, the Washington Post said today. The Post said the United States and other western nations were now considering additional economic aid to Egypt to make up for the cut-off in support from the Arab countries. Egypt had ignored Kuwait's request and might try to block the transfer of funds, it said. Egypt had received most of its economic aid from Saudi Arabia, which has joined other Arab countries in an economic boycott of Egypt. Saudi Arabia was believed to have about $900 million in the Central Bank of Egypt but had made no move to withdraw it. In Cairo, Prime Minister Mustapha Khalil said today Egypt has received no official request from Kuwait to withdraw its deposits from Egyptian banks. Dr. Khalil said he could not tell immediately whether Egypt could allow Kuwait to withdraw any funds. "I must study the request, when I get it, then see whether the financial conditions in Egypt can permit any funds withdrawal," he said.

Israeli gunners shell South Lebanon villages

BEIRUT, May 11 (R) — Israeli gunners and their rightist allies in southern Lebanon today shelled several areas in the region's central sector, the Palestine News Agency (Wafa) reported. It said among villages shelled was Braichit, which has been a target of similar bombardment in the past. The agency did not mention any casualties or damage. The area has been calm since Wednesday when an armoured column of 500 Israelis, accompanied by rightist militiamen pushed eight kilometres from the border to occupy the village of Shaqra for some hours. At the time, the Israelis said they were pursuing Palestinian commandos who had attacked a settlement in Upper Galilee. They withdrew after being confronted by U.N. troops. Meanwhile, Lebanon formally requested an urgent Security Council meeting on the situation in southern Lebanon. Lebanese Ambassador Ghasan Tuani told a news conference yesterday that he was making the announcement because of widespread confusion over whether two letters he previously circulated on Israeli incursions into the area constituted a formal request for such a meeting. "The fact that they were couched in terms that were not conventional or did not correspond to the literary jargon of the U.N. is only probably a sign of my desire not to conform with the jargon," he said. He said he wrote a formal letter yesterday but the council president, Portuguese Ambassador Vasco Fuschier Pereira, thought it unnecessary since the council was already aware of the matter. Mr. Pereira held consultations on Wednesday with representatives of the countries that have contributed troops to the U.N. peace-keeping force in southern Lebanon. Diplomatic sources said they discussed ways of influencing Israel to change its policy of conducting raids against Palestinian camps and bases in the area. Mr. Tuani would not say what methods were being considered, but the sources said the troop-contributors would join with major western governments which were also trying to influence Israel. Mr. Tuani said: "My government is satisfied with the manner in which Mr. Pereira conducted yesterday what in appearance seemed to be consultations, but in reality was a very consistent and forceful diplomatic action, in conjunction with the various governments concerned."

Soviet team in Israel for WW II rites

TEL AVIV, May 11 (R) — A four-man delegation from the Soviet Union arrived in Israel today to take part in ceremonies marking the end of the second world war but its leader stressed the visit did not indicate any change in Soviet policies towards Israel. The visiting delegation, which arrived at the invitation of the Israel-Soviet Union Friendship Society, sponsored by the Israeli Communist Party, will attend tree-planting ceremonies at the Red Army Forest, established in the Jerusalem hills after the war. Delegation leader Alexander Bobin said the group would not meet Israeli officials but would talk to members of the Knesset (parliament) who have visited Russia in recent months. Mr. Bobin said the Soviet Union would not re-establish diplomatic relations with Israel until a just peace had been reached in the Middle East. "We do not think the Israel-Egypt peace treaty is a just peace," he said.

Soviet Muslims hail Iran, Afghanistan

MOSCOW, May 11 (R) — The leaders of the Soviet Union's 40-million Muslim community today hailed what they described as the success of their fellow-believers in Afghanistan and Iran in building new societies and combating imperialism. The four muftis of the Soviet Islamic communities and other Muslim officials touched on events across the Soviet Union's southern border in a foreign affairs declaration issued at the end of a Moscow conference. The statement, which paralleled official Soviet foreign policy views, concentrated on disarmament and criticism of China and Israel, then added: "We welcome and support the great successes of our brothers in belief in Iran and Afghanistan in the struggle with imperialism, for the creation of a new just society...for independence and sovereignty." The Soviet declaration called on all Muslims to struggle for peace and good relations among people according to the teachings of the Koran and the Prophet Mohammed. The Muslim leaders were meeting in Moscow to plan celebrations to mark the opening of the 15th century of the Muslim calendar later this year. They decided to hold an international conference in Tashkent in September 1980 to be based on the theme of peace and friendship between peoples.

EEC foreign ministers to discuss wide range of international issues

CAHORS, France, May 11 (R) — Lord Carrington, Britain's new foreign secretary, will have his first meeting with his Common Market colleagues tomorrow. Britain's eight EEC partners will question him on the newly elected Conservative government's approach to the community, and on its policy for Rhodesia. The two-day gathering, at a chateau near Cahors, is an informal meeting held twice a year to give the nine a chance to discuss international political issues away from officials and formal agendas. According to Common Market sources the host, French Foreign Minister Jean Francois-Poncet, has sent his colleagues a list of topics they can expect to discuss. These include the Middle East, Iran, Sino-Soviet relations, Southeast Asia, and the economic difficulties of Turkey, on the southern flank of NATO. Mr. Francois-Poncet told reporters in Paris that Britain's attitude to Rhodesia will be important in determining how the eight other member states react to the recent elections in Rhodesia and Bishop Abel Muzorewa's government. Rhodesia was still primarily a British responsibility and legally it was still a colony, the French minister said. The Patriotic Front guerrillas, who refused to take part in the election, could not be ignored, he added. Asked whether there might be a new policy statement on the Middle East by the nine, Mr. Francois-Poncet said he did not yet know the thinking of his EEC partners. Belgian sources said their minister, Mr. Henri Simonet, would report to his colleagues on his visit to Saudi Arabia last month. Saudi officials expressed concern to Mr. Simonet about the Common Market countries' attitude to the Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty. Mr. Simonet provoked Israeli concern by agreeing in a joint communique with his Saudi hosts that Israel should pull back from the part of Jerusalem it occupied in the 1967 war, as well as other occupied territories. Tomorrow's meeting also gives the nine an opportunity to examine their views on next month's direct elections for the European Parliament. EEC sources said Mr. Francois-Poncet proposed they should discuss the effects on Common Market framers of enlarging the community to take in Greece, Spain and Portugal.

If Brezhnev's health holds up U.S.-Soviet summit set for June 15-18

WASHINGTON, May 11 (R) — President Carter and President Leonid Brezhnev will hold summit talks in Vienna from June 15 to 18 — if the Soviet leader's frail health holds up.

The White House announced today that Mr. Carter and the 72-year old Soviet president would meet to sign the new Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty, SALT II, and discuss bilateral relations and world problems. The announcement was followed quickly by a statement from the official Soviet News Agency Tass that the June dates were tentative — and the strong belief in the Carter administration was that Tass was referring to Mr. Brezhnev's health. Diplomatic sources also said the Soviet leader's health problems were taken into account in summit arrangements and obviously cast a question mark over the next few weeks. Sources noted that Mr. Brezhnev had arranged to take a holiday soon, apparently in the hope that he could maintain his strength and take part in what could be arduous discussions with Mr. Carter. Reports from French sources who accompanied President Valery Giscard d'Estaing to Moscow last month said that Mr. Brezhnev, though mentally alert, was unable to hold long talks. His speech was badly slurred, he used only a spoon at a state banquet for Mr. Giscard d'Estaing, and he seemed confused and very slow, the reports said. Some U.S. officials said they believed that Mr. Brezhnev's health will limit the length of his talks with Mr. Carter, even if it does not worsen between now and mid-June. In that case, the signing of SALT II could be the main issue on the agenda and problems such as the collision of U.S. and Soviet interests in Africa, the Middle East and Southeast Asia might not be dealt with in depth by the two leaders. Other officials said that the presence of foreign ministers and other high-level officials from both governments will provide opportunities for wide-ranging talks to determine if detente can be improved. Assuming Mr. Brezhnev is fit enough, his talks with President Carter are expected to deal with possible ways of extending cooperation on SALT to other problems and limiting competition and confrontation in crucial areas of the world. An administration official said some SALT II issues would have to be reviewed by the two leaders before they signed the new record. Ratification of the new accord by the U.S. Senate is uncertain because of claims by powerful critics that it puts the United States in an inferior military position and might permit the Russians to cheat. U.S. officials noted Moscow

Ibrahim, Gromyko discuss Mideast

MOSCOW, May 11 (JNA) — Minister of State for Foreign Affairs Hassan Ibrahim and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko held a working meeting here today during which they reviewed their positions vis-a-vis the Middle East issue, the separate peace treaty between Egypt and Israel and its impact on efforts aimed at achieving a just and lasting peace in the area. The meeting was attended by Jordan's Ambassador to Moscow, Mr. Hani Al Khasawneh, the Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister, the Soviet Ambassador to Amman and the Director of the Middle East Department at the Soviet Foreign Ministry. After the meeting, Mr. Gromyko held a banquet in honour of Mr. Ibrahim.

Gunmen kill U.S. soldier, wound two in Istanbul

ISTANBUL, May 11 (R) — Gunmen shot dead a U.S. soldier and wounded two others as the Americans were about to board a military bus today, police sources said. The state radio said four gunmen opened fire from a passing car in the city's Atakoy district. It named the dead man as Corporal Thomas Mosley. The three Americans were stationed at a North Atlantic Treaty Organisation (NATO) base at Cakmakli, near Istanbul, the police sources said. The shooting came almost one month after an American non-commissioned officer was shot dead and another wounded in a similar ambush in the west coast resort of Izmir, where NATO has its south-eastern headquarters. The police sources said the Americans today were about to board a U.S. military service bus, but it was not immediately known whether they were in uniform. The U.S. embassy in Ankara said it had heard reports of an incident but could not yet confirm any of the details announced by the radio. At least 1,200 people have died in street political assassinations in Turkish cities since the start of 1978 but foreign targets have been rare.

U.S. threatens to quit WHO

GENEVA, May 11 (R) — The United States has threatened to pull out of the World Health Organisation (WHO) if its annual assembly approves an Arab-backed move against Israel, Iraqi Health Minister Riad Hussein said today. He told a news conference that the Americans had said they would withdraw if the assembly now in session in Geneva supported the proposal to suspend Israel's voting rights and WHO aid to Israel because of violations of human rights in Israeli-occupied territories. Dr. Hussein said he hoped that the United States, which provides one-quarter of the organisation's budget, would not take this step. He said that Israel was still not applying proper standards in the occupied areas despite an assembly resolution last year condemning it for "inhuman practices" against Arab prisoners. The resolution also expressed concern about the mental and physical health of Arabs in the occupied territories.

Charade

SO NOW EGYPT has formulated a set of "hard-line" proposals to present at the forthcoming negotiations with Israel over Palestinian "autonomy" in the West Bank and Gaza. Part of the official Israeli position is that autonomy should be granted to the Palestinians living in the occupied territories but not to the land itself, and that Palestinian "self-rule" should involve limited administrative, but not legislative, powers. Now the Egyptians come along to propose that the Palestinian "self-rule" authority should have executive, legislative and judicial powers, the Israeli military rule should end immediately the authority is formed and that after five years of "full self-rule", the Palestinian people should be free to determine their own future. This last option, of course, does not appear anywhere in the Israeli scheme of things.

Thus the Camp David charade continues. Egypt knows full well that no Palestinian organisations or individuals, not even those in formerly Egyptian-ruled Gaza, have authorised Cairo to negotiate on their behalf. Furthermore, it knows that the whole concept of negotiating the future of the Palestinians while Israel perpetuates its military occupation and settlements policy in the occupied territories has been totally rejected by the Palestinians and other Arab parties.

With the arrogance that has characterised Egypt's role throughout the whole Camp David process, Egypt in fact maintains that it is part of the Israeli plan that the "rejectionist" Arabs should adopt such a line in order to "place obstacles in the way of Palestinian self-determination." In other words, we are offered an Egyptian apology for the Israeli view of the Arab steadfastness front, with the implication that only Egypt, by confronting the Israelis with a hard-line autonomy plan, can ultimately win the Palestinians their national rights. The Egyptians thus propose to haggle like customers in a bazaar over the price of Palestinian nationhood: the two sides will start from their opposing bargaining positions and work their way towards an agreed compromise. This compromise will no doubt be achieved through the prestidigitary powers of Mr. Cyrus Vance or some other American intermediary, so the end result will therefore be an American plan for Palestinian self-rule.

The trouble here is that the Israelis have given us no grounds whatever for confidence in their willingness to negotiate meaningfully over this issue. As with the rest of the Camp David procedure to date, therefore, the Egyptian role is both unwise and unacceptable.

By forecasting that the negotiations will be "complicated and exhausting," furthermore, Egypt is only trying to create the circumstances where it can ultimately claim that whatever "solution" results represents a great diplomatic victory. That is the Egyptian style: to claim victory out of defeat, accomplishment out of capitulation.

ARAB PRESS COMMENTARY

IN ITS EDITORIAL Friday AL RA'I says that although the U.S. defense secretary has recently tried to tone down his threats to the Arabs, he has made an even more serious mistake by declaring that the U.S. will supply Israel with "all the means necessary for it to protect vital U.S. interests in the Middle East."

Meanwhile, the paper continues, aboard a U.S. ship in the Mediterranean, Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin boasts that the presence of the U.S. sixth fleet in the Mediterranean constitutes real protection for Israel.

The paper further adds that Israel, which is suffering from a "Massada complex", the fear of annihilation, has the will to fight the Arabs because of its present military power.

The paper continues that while Israeli troops are carrying out a war of annihilation against the Palestinians in Lebanon, the Arabs, who lack the will to fight, seem to be content with holding conferences here and there in the belief that "political and diplomatic options are all there is available to counter Israel's will to fight."

The paper concludes by saying that since the U.S. sixth fleet represents, by admission of both Harold Brown and Menachem Begin, Israel's reserve power in the Mediterranean and the Red Sea, the Arabs have got to decide now, before it is too late, whether they are going to continue to cling to the political way of solving the problem, or renounce this option and promote the build up of Arab strength to the point where it will be capable of confronting the U.S. and Israel.

AL DUSTOUR says it seems that the prospective summit between Lebanese President Elias Sarkis and Syrian President Hafez Al Assad rouses Israel's indignation. The holding of the summit in itself indicates that despite the escalation by Israel of its military operations in the south of Lebanon -- designed to bring Lebanon to its knees -- Lebanon, the paper says, is pressing forward to maintain cooperation with Syria in order to improve the security in its territories.

The paper lauds the "nationalistic and courageous" stand of Elias Sarkis in his committing Lebanon to implement Arab resolutions and affirming that the Palestinian cause is the core of the Middle East issue.

Following the signing by Egyptian President Anwar Sadat of the separate treaty with Israel, the paper says, Israel has chosen Lebanon as an "area in which to flex its muscles and exert materialistic and psychological pressures, not only against Lebanon, but against the Arab states rejecting capitulation as well."

The paper admires the Lebanese steadfastness and the role exerted by Syria, and call on the Arabs to support Syria, which the paper says, has always been foremost in shouldering its responsibilities (as part of the Arab nation) in Lebanon. "The ordeal of southern Lebanon," the paper continues, "is only the beginning of a brutal battle which Israel has decided to wage in order to subdue the Arabs."

In conclusion, the paper calls for an Arab summit to be held in order to draw up the necessary plans to frustrate the Israeli attempts to subdue the Arab nation.

PAT-POURRI

Good news for samak (fish) lovers! The trout have at last arrived at Laterna Restaurant. Trout are shipped from Arne, 40 kilometres from Damascus once a week so that patrons can select their fish and have it grilled on the spot.

On the first day of their arrival, Laterna Manager, Mr. Bourhan Boukhari, provided diners with a floor show as he rolled up his pants, stepped into the patio pool, and personally caught the trout with a collander. Word has it that Mr. Boukhari now has a more suitable instrument for catching the trout.

This week also marks the opening of an exhibit of works by Mr.

Said Yagen at Laterna. His oil paintings have been on a traveling exhibit to Homs and Aleppo.

The summer course for learning classical Arabic begins June 5 at the Institute for Teaching Arabic to Foreigners at Dar Es Salaam School. Fee for the three-month course is $50.

Instruction is from 5 to 8 p.m. daily except Friday. Interested persons are requested to inform the institute by letter. The address: Arabic Teaching Institute for Foreigners, Syria, Damascus.

If you have items for the Damas-Scene column, please send them 10 days in advance to Pat McDonnell, P.O. Box 5601, Damascus, Syria.

Horse racing, gambling resume in Tehran

TEHRAN, May 11 (R)—Horse racing, accompanied by the usual trappings of bookmakers and hopeful punters, resumes after a six-month break in Tehran today under the watchful eyes of Iran's strict new revolutionary Islamic government.

Although the authorities have given the go-ahead for the meeting at the capital's plush $40 million track, their future attitude to the sport of kings remains unclear. A loophole in Islamic law is responsible for the extraordinary contrast in the official attitude to racing in Iran, where casinos, public drinking places and nightclubs have all been closed by the revolutionary leaders. Although Islam bans gambling because it is a game of chance, wagering is permitted on horse racing, fencing and shooting because these sports involve a test of skill.

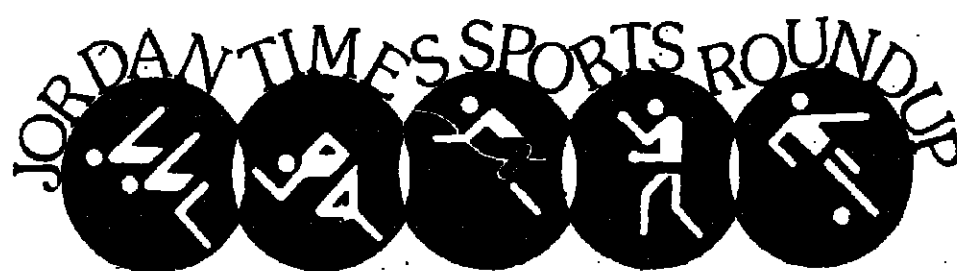

Today's meeting will also be watched anxiously by macho casino tycoon Stanley Ho, head of the Chinese business syndicate behind the Tehran track, which opened for its first season last June and because of the revolution made a huge loss for investors in its first year of operation. Mr. Ho's Tehran Racing Company (TRC) has certainly entered into the spirit of the revolution. The main race tomorrow will be "the Islamic Republic Cup" and the day's sport begins with "the freedom hand-

All connections with the ousted Shah of Iran, himself a great lover of horses, have been quietly dropped. "I don't even remember his first name," joked one trainer about the exiled monarch. Turkoman tribesmen from Iran's northeastern border with the Soviet Union pitched their tents around the cinder race track several days ago and yesterday were exercising their tough little horses to the wail of jackals from the surrounding hills.

The revolution itself left the track relatively unscathed, considering that it is sited between a former royal palace and the Doshan Tapeh airbase, the main battleground of last February's "battle of Tehran." Some bed-ragged sandbag emplacements and a scattering of militiamen are the main reminders of change.

At the height of the uprising, the TRC's three expatriate trainers — Australian John Davison, Ireland's Andy O'Donnell and Britain's Bob Windsor-Clive — took to the hills immediately behind the track after receiving a death threat. They roamed over a former royal hunting reserve, together with deer and jackals, hundreds of army deserters and other strays for a whole night, watching the fighting by moonlight before returning to their horses.

United, Arsenal battle today for FA cup

LONDON, May 11 (R)—Manchester United and Arsenal, two of England's most famous and successful soccer clubs, are set to match their proud traditions against each other on Saturday in the final of the Football Association (FA) cup. FA cup final day is the highlight of the English football season, with Wembley Stadium a surging sea of passionate fans, their rival chants breaking like waves across the lush, green turf. Over 90,000 supporters pack the stands and terraces, while millions more throughout the world watch the match on television. For Arsenal fans the journey to Wembley is short—just a few kilometres from their north London Highbury home. But last year the red badges and banners fluttered forlornly in the city streets after Arsenal had slumped to a shock 1-0 defeat against unfancied Ipswich. This time Arsenal are determined not to miss out on the glory. They believe they learned their lesson against Ipswich, and are now ready for the kill. Manchester United suffered a similar blow in 1976, crashing to underdogs Southampton. The following year United bounced back to defeat Liverpool, and on Saturday face their third cup final in four years. Arsenal, mainly because of their superior league form, are the marginal favourites, and this will suit United. "Somehow United always seem to play better when they are not expected to win," Bobby Charlton said. Charlton, the former Manchester United and England star, is loath to predict the result but, like many other experts, believes United's ability to produce the unexpected could win them the cup. "You must remember United beat Liverpool in the semifinals, and you have to be a bit special to do that," Laurie McMenemy, manager of Southampton said.

World Men's Basketball Championship

PRAGUE, May 11 (R)—Czechoslovakia beat the United States 77-75 with a goal in the last second of their Intercontinental Basketball Cup match here last night. The American team started badly allowing the Czechoslovaks to take a 10-point lead by the third minute and loose play and bad defence combined with inaccurate shooting left them trailing 41-26 at halftime. In the second half the Americans gradually improved their checking, especially under their own net, and were level at 62-63 by the 14th minute. Two penalties by Steve Johnson put them ahead 65-64 for the first time and they went on to lead 71-65. Czechoslovakia rallied to tie the score at 73-73 but a goal by Smith put the Americans ahead again at 75-73 before Hruska made it 75-75 with 35 seconds left. The Americans, with the ball in their possession, moved into the attack, but bad passing under their opponents' net gave Czechoslovakia the opportunity to counter-attack and Hruska netted the winning goal in the last second of the match.

France scored their third victory in the Intercontinental Basketball Cup when they beat Mexico 109-82 in Rennes, France, yesterday. The French looked over confident at the start and led only 26-24 after 11 minutes. The Mexicans stayed in touch until the dying minutes of the first-half when the French surged into a decisive lead. France continued to play more positively at the start of the second-half and raced 20 points ahead (73-53) within seven minutes of the resumption. The rest of the match was without incident as the French showed the same mettle which gave them a 98-86 victory over the United States at the weekend and a 103-87 win over Argentina on Tuesday.

Ferrari, Ligier vie for Belgian Grand Prix

ZOLDER, Belgium, May 11 (R)—The fierce rivalry of the Ligier and Ferrari motor racing teams, who between them have won all five grand prix this season, is likely to dominate the Belgian Grand Prix here on Sunday. But the Lotus team of world champion Mario Andretti and Carlos Reutemann may force a three-cornered fight. Andretti won the Belgian race last year. He and Reutemann are optimistic after taking second and third places in the Spanish Grand Prix at Jarama on April 29. Of the five races this season, Ferrari's Gilles Villeneuve has won two, Ligier's Jacques Laffite two and his teammate Patrick Depailler one. Andretti will be driving the new Lotus 80 again but Reutemann of Brazil will still be in last year's Lotus 79. Practice began this morning for Sunday's 70 laps of the twisting 4.262-kilometre track. Ligier do not plan any changes to their cars after Patrick Depailler's win in Spain despite Jacques Laffite's forced withdrawal from the race with an electrical failure. Villeneuve of Canada and South Africa's Jody Scheckter expected the Spanish prize to be a hard race and this was reflected in their seventh and fourth placings there. But they took first and second places in both the South African and the U.S. grands prix and are confident the Zolder circuit will be kinder to them than Jarama. Niki Lauda of Austria has not finished higher than sixth this season in his Brabham but he has won the Belgian Grand Prix twice before.

Lauda was unlucky in Spain — he had just edged into third place when the engine lost all its water and he had to retire. John Watson of Britain damaged his chances when he crashed his McLaren in testing at Zolder last week. Another car is being built in time for Sunday. Watson also had to retire from the Jarama race, in which only 14 of the 24 starters finished.

Kenya's soccer team advances

NAIROBI, May 11 (R)—Kenya has advanced to the second round in the Africa zone qualifying rounds for the Moscow Olympics soccer tournament after Sudan's withdrawal from their first round clash. Kenyan soccer officials said today. The officials said the Kenyan team, Harambee Stars, arrived in Khartoum yesterday for the first round, first leg tie today only to be informed that Sudan had pulled out of the tournament early this month as part of their prolonged measure "to reorganise sport in the country first." "The only disappointment was that they had not let us know in advance so we could save our training and travelling expenses for the latter. We are definitely going to demand a reimbursement from the Sudanese authorities," Paul Chabeda, the Kenya Football Federation secretary told reporters.

A.—Partner's failure to rebid three no-trump indicates that he may not have spades and diamonds adequately guarded to make the no-trump game a secure contract. However, your hearts bid a 4-3 fit (partner cannot have four-card support) might be no better. For the moment, all you can do is bid four clubs and allow partner to select the final contract.

UNCTAD delegates complain that talks have been wasted time

MANILA, May 11, (R)—Negotiations between rich and poor nations remained at a standstill today and some delegates from industrialised countries complained that almost everything so far at the big United Nations conference here had been a waste of time.

There were growing signs of impatience among the industrialised countries as they still waited to start down-to-earth bargaining after five days at the 159-nation U.N. Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD).

"Apart from the continuing national statements by heads of delegations in the plenary session, literally nothing is going on here," one delegate from the developed world complained.

A second delegate added: "Almost an entire week has been wasted, and the fear is that the impetus towards agreement, launched with the opening speeches, will fall away if a proper start is not made."

The conference is due to last four weeks and some delegates from developed nations suspect the delay in getting started on real issues may put pressure on negotiators towards the end of the meeting.

Adding to the frustrations, the third world nations are having difficulty reaching agreement within their own ranks.

Meanwhile, the International Monetary Fund (IMF) urged industrialised countries to step up low-interest loans to the poorer countries to get them off the poverty line.

IMF managing director J. De Larosiere said such aid would also help the richer countries expand their economies by boosting world trade.

During the UNCTAD session today, Iraq proposed that oil

WASHINGTON, May 11

(R)—Americans will get their first chance to see Leonardo Da

Vinci's "Madonna and Child",

one of the best known paintings in the world, this summer, courtesy of the Kremlin.

The painting is the centrepiece of 10 other immensely valuable

Renaissance masterpieces that normally hang in the Hermitage, the Leningrad museum. The collection, entitled "From Leonardo to Titian," was unveiled yesterday at a press preview at the National Gallery attended by Soviet minister of culture Peter Demichev.

The paintings will hang in the gallery until June 24. They go to

Los Angeles on July 3 and to New York on August 21. They include works by Titian, Raphael, Cor-

reggio, Sarto, Melzo, Conegliano,

Primaticcio, Pontorno, Lotto and exporting countries and both capitalist and communist industrial nations set up a special fund to compensate the Third World for inflation.

The oil-rich nations should contribute to this fund the exact amount added to Third World inflation by higher oil prices. Iraq's Under-Secretary of Trade, Mahdi Muhsen Auda, said.

This was the first concrete proposal put before UNCTAD.

"Iraq proposes the establishment of an international fund encompassing all industrial countries, irrespective of their political and economic systems, to compensate the amount of inflation directly exported by them annually to the developing countries and according to the reflected prices of goods and services imported to these countries," Mr. Auda said.

Andrew Young, U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations, warned against hasty action in "reorganising the world's economic system."

He urged UNCTAD to avoid blaming the international system for problems that each of them could best deal with domestically.

Even at his advanced age, he was at his office every morning on the 36th floor of a skyscraper to handle the huge amount of correspondence as an industrialist and self-appointed world peacemaker.

News of the industrialist's death was delayed until yesterday so his son Cyrus Eaton Jr., visiting China, could be informed.

He was known as the Communist world's favourite capitalist for his efforts over many decades to promote East-West peace.

The Canadian-born industrialist once called himself "perhaps as hardened a capitalist as the world contains." Yet he won the Lenin Peace Prize in 1960 as well as many other awards from Communist countries.

Until Mr. Eaton's retirement a year ago, he kept a tight grip on his enterprises, which included $2.6 billion worth of holdings in railways, iron mines, steel mills, coal mines and electric power utilities.

He resigned last year as a director of the Chessie Systems, Inc., a railroad company, to spend more time at his homes in Nova Scotia and Florida.

Mr. Eaton was known as the founder of the Pugwash Conferences, where intellectuals, scientists and statesmen meet behind locked doors to discuss major world issues. Pugwash is a lobster fishing village on the Northumberland Strait of Nova Scotia where Mr. Eaton was born on December 27, 1883.

Even if the Vietnamese side fails to release any Chinese captured personnel, we intend to continue to release the captured Vietnamese by groups," he said. "In other words, this initiative on the part of China is aimed at expediting the repatriation of all captured personnel of the two sides."

He added that Hanoi had said it was holding about 200 Chinese, "but we think this figure is not accurate. Anyway, it is not a complete figure."

A Reuter correspondent who visited a P.O.W. camp at Bai Se in Guangxi autonomous region a few weeks ago was told by the camp commanders that many of the Vietnamese prisoners had said they did not want to return to Vietnam.

The prisoners there and at another camp in neighbouring Yunnan province appeared to be well fed and well treated.

Mr. Zhong said China did not know how Vietnam was treating its Chinese prisoners.

The Vietnamese side has refused any permission for us to visit those captured Chinese personnel, he said.

The vice-minister, announcing that the peace talks would resume tomorrow, commented that their prospects were very difficult.

"But despite this fact, we will do our best to achieve some progress, whatever little progress it may be. But the result is not determined by the Chinese side alone. It depends on the attitude of the Vietnamese side."

The talks began on April 18 with Vietnam suggesting a demilitarised zone be established on the border. This was rejected by China, which in turn put forward an eight-point proposal.

Hanoi replied that no self-respecting nation could accept the proposal.

Mr. Young was speaking after a week-long barrage of accusations by developing countries that rich nations were hampering world trade by resorting to protectionism. He did not specifically reply to the charges, but said that all countries needed to reaffirm their commitment to resist the temptation to succumb to protectionism.

Meanwhile, Iran said its oil production and exports have almost reached their level prior to the February revolution that brought the government's downfall. Iranian Deputy Minister for Economic Affairs and Finance, Cyrus Ebrahimpzadeh, said.

"I wish to emphasise that the new regime in Iran is fully conscious of its obligations and has every intention of continuing the flow of this essential commodity to the world markets," he said.

Mr. Ebrahimpzadeh told UNCTAD that last year's oil strike was entirely a domestic issue, aimed at overthrowing the Shah's regime.

Uganda needs $2.3 billion to rebuild, says Lule

NAIROBI, May 11 (R)—Uganda President Yusufu Lule says his country will need between two and 2.3 billion dollars for its first reconstruction programme.

Uganda Radio reported today. President Lule, speaking in an interview with a British Broadcasting Corporation (BBC) television team, said this was an "astronomical figure," but added that Uganda had to overcome eight years of mal-administration under deposed dictator Idi Amin.

He said there had been a major psychological destruction under Mr. Amin and Ugandans had lost faith in their neighbours, as well as in the government. The country's first need was to establish stability, he added.

President Lule said the government wants Ugandans to participate fully in the economy, but there would be room for foreign investors in a mixed economy.

Meanwhile, Tanzanian newspapers in Dar Es Salaam say today that Uganda's new government claims 25,000 people who fled the country into Sudan are Sudanese nationals who backed the ousted military regime of dictator Idi Amin.

They quoted a Ugandan representative at a pan-African conference on refugees as saying yesterday: "The Amin regime was maintained by mercenaries including nationals of Sudan."

China to release 100 Viet prisoners

PEKING, May 11 (R)—China said today that it would release about 100 of the Vietnamese prisoners captured in the recent month-long border war.

Vice-Foreign Minister Zhong Xidong also told a press conference that the fourth session of peace talks between the two countries would be held in Hanoi tomorrow morning.

Mr. Zhong said the prisoners would be released on the border on May 19. He hoped that representatives of the Vietnamese Red Cross would meet their Chinese counterparts then to discuss further releases.

China held just over 1,600 Vietnamese after freeing 1,000 on the battlefield during the war, he said.

He did not know how many Chinese were being held in Vietnam.

Thatcher pledges military support for W. Europe

LONDON, May 11 (R)—Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher pledged Britain to play its full part in countering what she called the military threat in Europe.

Less than one week in office as Europe's first woman prime minister, Margaret Thatcher has launched herself into foreign policy issues by hosting two important summit meetings in a single day.

Mrs. Thatcher, 53, first met yesterday with Irish Prime Minister Jack Lynch at her London residence, 10 Downing Street, to discuss the bloody conflict in British-ruled Northern Ireland. She then started a two-day summit conference with another European Common Market Leader, West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt.

In a dinner address, Mrs. Thatcher pledged her support for strong military defences in Western Europe and committed her government to working actively to develop the Common Market. She told Mr. Schmidt, one of the community's most powerful leaders: "We shall play our full part, with such measures as may be necessary, in countering the military threat."

Mrs. Thatcher did not identify the source of the threat but there was little doubt that she was referring to the Soviet Union, which describes her as "The Iron Lady" because of her tough speeches against Communism.

Mrs. Thatcher made clear her government's position on membership in the nine-nation Common Market, still a controversial issue in Britain. "We believe it is not only right for Europe but right for this country. Our purpose is to engage fully and actively with our partners in developing the community," she said.

But Mrs. Thatcher served warning to the other member countries that they would not find her government "a soft touch." She said her government would be resolute in defending British interests. She added that it was unacceptable for Britain to pay the lion's share of the enormous costs of storing and disposing of unwanted community surpluses.

Mr. Zhong said the prisoners would be released on the border on May 19. He hoped that representatives of the Vietnamese Red Cross would meet their Chinese counterparts then to discuss further releases.

China held just over 1,600 Vietnamese after freeing 1,000 on the battlefield during the war, he said.

He did not know how many Chinese were being held in Vietnam.

Even if the Vietnamese side fails to release any Chinese captured personnel, we intend to continue to release the captured Vietnamese by groups," he said. "In other words, this initiative on the part of China is aimed at expedit-

ing the repatriation of all captured personnel of the two sides."

He added that Hanoi had said it was holding about 200 Chinese, "but we think this figure is not accurate. Anyway, it is not a complete figure."

A Reuter correspondent who visited a P.O.W. camp at Bai Se in Guangxi autonomous region a few weeks ago was told by the camp commanders that many of the Vietnamese prisoners had said they did not want to return to Vietnam.
